

Contents

Foreword .....	vii
Preface .....	viii
Authors' note .....	viii
Acknowledgements .....	viii
Section 1. Introduction .....	1
Background
Our research
This Occasional Paper
Section 2. What is Balint? .....	3
What Balint means to me: 'you love what you do'
Balint groups in general practice training
Section 3. Method and methodology .....	5
The design of the study
Ethical considerations
Methodological issues
The turn to narrative
Section 4. The case studies .....	9
Highville
Jamestown
Case 1 (Balint group): the personal and the professional – 'I'm a sappy person but not an emotional doctor '
Case 2 (non-Balint group): 'You can get more out of these sessions than from any textbook'
Case 3 (non-Balint group): a view from the course organiser's seat
Case 4 (Balint group): 'It's fantastic to do something in depth'
Case 5 (Balint group): 'There's what you say in the group and there's what you say outside'
Case 6 (Balint group): 'I found I had less and less to say'
Case 7: a Balint group at work
Doctors' summary comments about Balint and non-Balint group learning

Section 5. The stories doctors told .....	20
An outline of context
New stories, new thinking
Silencing stories
Mistaking cultural identifiers for culture
Caring for others: a moral tale
Supporting each other, caring for themselves
Section 6. Strengthening the educational potential of small-group work: implications from the evaluation .....	24
Theme 1: what was the learning climate in small groups in GP vocational training? How was it being put to work and understood?
Theme 2: what were the dynamics of learning in a small group, and how might the Balint approach affect them?
Theme 3: what might be an appropriate methodology for evaluating small-group work on the VTS?
Theme 4: what else was happening in the small groups under study and with what possible effects?
Theme 5: how was the Balint approach variously understood? What were the differences that make a difference?
What next?
Conclusion
References .....	28
Appendix 1: Michael Balint – a man of many parts.....	30
Appendix 2: teaching with the Balint approach – a personal view from a Balint course organiser .....	31